116 A GUN-REST—Italian (Milanese), late 16th Century

The actual rest itself is of U form, and fashioned at the extremities as the heads of the Hydra, the two bodies in the centre issuing from grotesque and horned lions' masks, which in turn are supported on inverted cornucopiæ; the haft socket is composed of a fluted column with a frieze of classic ornament $1\frac{1}{4}$ in. deep at the lower extremity. The haft ($41\frac{1}{2}$ in. long) of rose-wood, elaborately inlaid with polished and engraved stag's-horn, also gold and silver, the principal ornamentation consisting of four male figures, emblematical of the Seasons, standing beneath canopies, around which is entwined strapwork, enriched with swags of fruit and flowers, and with figures of parrots and other exotic birds; the gold and silver inlay is utilised in Berainesque-like forms; the ferrule, or shoe of the haft is decorated in a like manner to the haft socket. The steelwork of this rest is chiselled throughout with the greatest crispness and exactitude, all the raised portions brilliantly blued, on field that is matted and gilt; in addition, many of the details of this ornament are thickly plated with gold

Philip II. of Spain presented a series of fire-arms with their accessories, together with two swords, to Emmanuel Philibert of Savoy, the greater portion of which gift is now preserved in the Royal Armoury at Turin, numbered G 12 & G 133 in the present Catalogue. However, individual specimens have escaped from the original gift, for in the Collection of H.M. The Czar of Russia is a superb wheel-lock gun that must have originally formed part of the gift; the companion to which is now in the Collection of Mr. W. Riggs, of Paris; whilst in the Wallace Collection the pistols Nos. 724, 728 and 774, also the powder-flask 769, are from the hand of the same artist

CARVED WOOD FURNITURE

- 117 A CABINET, formed on the lines of a secrétaire, with falling front enclosing drawers, &c., doors beneath, by Barnardo Tasso—71 in. high, 55 in. wide—Florentine, first half of the 16th Century

It is composed of Italian walnut, patinated to a rich dark colour and furnished with plaques of ebony and light wood; the principal panel of ornament is upon the falling writing-slab, in the centre of which is carved in alto-relievo an urn of shell-like formation; this is upon a field carved in bas-relief with a form of strap design. The same theme of ornament has been adopted on the two lower panels, but in these cases the vases have above them shields emblazoned with the Farnese arms, surmounted by a bishop's hat. The whole bordering of this rich cabinet is formed by mouldings and friezes of classical origin. It stands on depressed spherical feet

(No. 574, pl. 53)

See Illustration

- 118 A CABINET, of walnut-wood, in two parts, with folding doors above and below—7 ft. 6 in. high—Italian, 16th Century

The upper moulding of the top portion is supported on the heads of male caryatids; the architrave carved and pierced with amorini holding fleur-de-lys, with an eagle between; the panels of the doors below carved in low relief with oval shields and flowering scrollwork

(No. 573, pl. 52)

- 119 A CABINET, of carved walnut-wood, with folding doors below, the borders carved with shield-shaped ornaments, surmounted by griffins' heads; the upper part falls to form an escritoire, and is surmounted by a frieze of similar decoration to that on the lower: a vase and mask above—6 ft. high by 4 ft. wide—Italian, 16th Century

(No. 575, pl. 54)

- 120 A CABINET, with folding doors above and below, and drawer in the centre, of Italian walnut-wood—86 in. high, 42 in. wide—Italian, 16th Century

It is of architectural form, with columns at the angles, and broken gable top, between which is a small niche, carved as a classic building; the panels of the doors relieved by simple mouldings; the centre of drawer carved in relief with the head of a Cherub, and standing on depressed spherical feet

(No. 576, pl. 55)

- 121 AN ARMOIRE, of light wood, probably pear—6 ft. 3 in. by 6 ft. 10 in. wide—Italian work, of the middle of the 15th Century

It is of rectangular "cupboard" form, containing shelves enclosed by folding doors, doubly hinged, each door containing panels of tracery, consisting of six square-shaped panels in the centre, and three upright ones at the sides. The tracery is of almost "French Gothic" character, having a design of flamboyant oriels introducing a fleur-de-lys like form. At the corners of the armoire are buttresses issuing from the uprights, which form the ends of the plain panel below the doors; they finish at the top in crocketed pinnacles. The frieze and moulding above are of marked classic design; the whole armoire enriched by bands and borderings of coloured woods, of inlaid marqueterie in the typical Italian manner of the late 15th Century; the hinges and handles of iron, non-russeted

(No. 577, pl. 56)

See Illustration

- 122 A CABINET, of walnut-wood—65 in. high, 49 in. wide, 18 in. deep—probably Urbino work, first half of the 16th Century

It is composed of two parts, the upper one containing fourteen drawers and two small cupboards, enclosing shelves; the top moulding lifts, disclosing two long drawers, the whole elaborately inlaid with serpentine ribands, engraved with various Latin mottoes; across the top, in larger characters, runs the motto IGNAVOS FORTUNA PREMIT, the sides enriched with trellis and geometrical designs in fine parqueterie. The lower half has folding doors enclosing shelves, similar in decoration, but the panels of the doors are inlaid with figures of harpies, vases, flaming torches, &c.

(No. 578, pl. 57)

123 A WALNUT-WOOD OBLONG TABLE, the ends of scroll design, carved in the centre with a cardinal's arms, and resting upon lion's-claw feet; above are four drawers, carved with a frieze of foliage and palm-leaves; the top of the table is of fine marqueterie, with an alternating design of foliage and medallions, with fleurs-de-lys in the corners— $36\frac{1}{2}$ in. long—Italian, 16th Century

(No. 607, pl. 74)

124 A WALNUT-WOOD OBLONG TABLE, with a frieze of circular ornaments round the border, the supports carved as two-handled vases, on lion's-claw feet—50 in. long—Italian, late 16th Century

(No. 608, pl. 75)

125 A LARGE TABLE, of carved walnut-wood, the supports of scroll design, each carved with a female mask, and terminating in lion's-claw feet; the stretcher of open scroll design, with a medallion in the centre—9 ft. 9 in. long—Italian, 16th Century

(No. 609, pl. 76)

126 ANOTHER TABLE, of walnut-wood, of somewhat similar design, the supports carved with shields; the stretcher of scroll form, carved with shell ornament—9 ft. 9 in. long—Italian, 16th Century

(No. 610, pl. 77)

127 A TABLE, of walnut-wood—67 in. long, 40 in. wide—Italian, first half of the 16th Century

The supports at each end are most elaborately carved and pierced with female caryatids, terminating in lion's-claw feet, linked together below by a simple band, on which rests an eagle with outspread wings; above they are joined by bold swags of flowers and fruit; the two supports are connected at their base by a plinth, on which rest four vase-shaped balusters, supporting the centre of the table, the border of which is carved with an egg-and-tongue ornament, and frieze beneath of duplicated foliage and petals in bas-relief
